C-DORY

A C-Dory is right at home on the beach when the tide goes out.

A shallow draft comes in handy when gunkholing on Smuttynose Island, Maine.

A C-Dory is the key to reaching the out-of-the-way fishing hot spots like Red Bluff Bay, Alaska.

Your cruising itinerary is nearly unlimited with a C-Dory.

Even the most unspoiled spots are within reach.

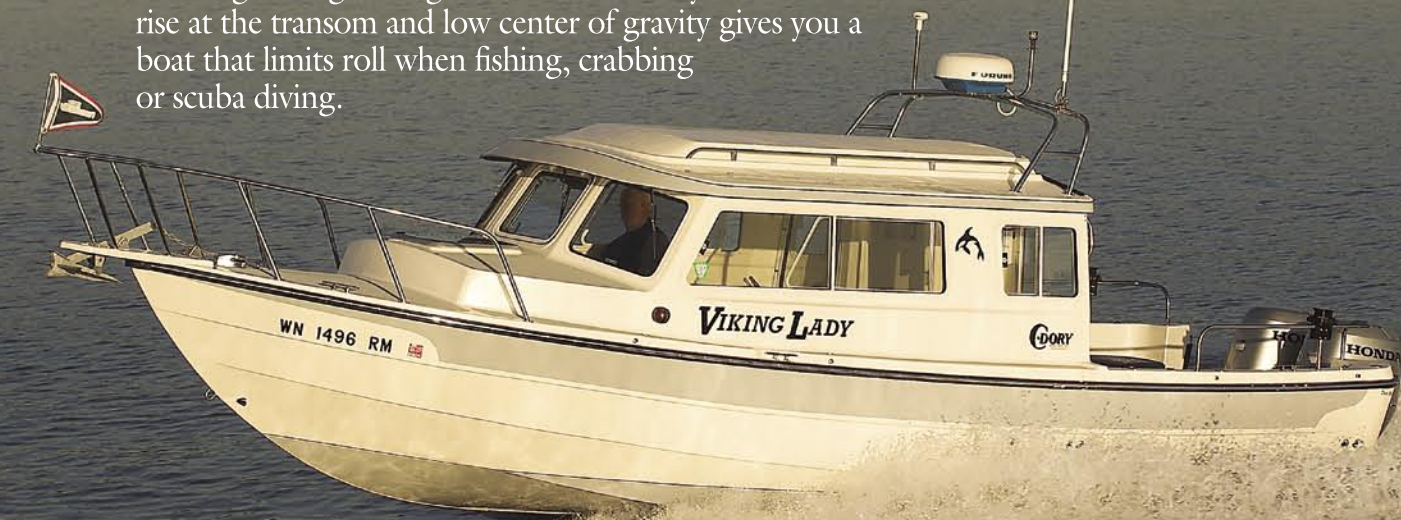

GETTING THERE

The versatility and practicality of the C-Dory will get you to your destination efficiently, comfortably and safely. You can easily trailer a C-Dory to the waterway of your choice so that you are not limited to beginning your journey from the same marina each time. Once under way, a C-Dory allows you to get to where you are going with good speed and terrific fuel efficiency. Destinations that are off-limits to traditional deeper draft vessels open up to C-Dory's shallow draft of only 7" to 10".

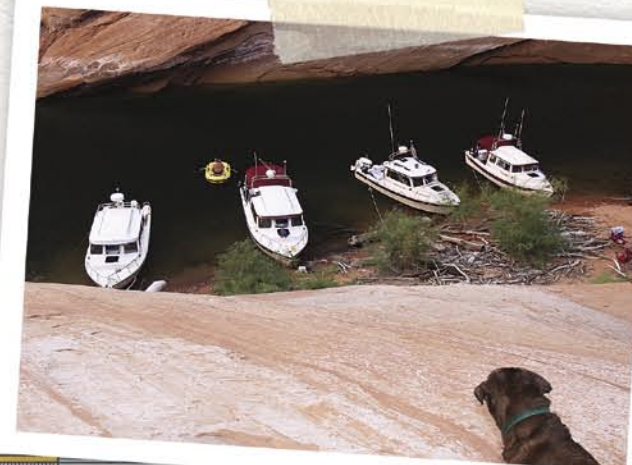

A strong and light weight hull with a nearly flat 6" dead rise at the transom and low center of gravity gives you a boat that limits roll when fishing, crabbing or scuba diving.

C-DORY

Easy to maintain, the C-Dory enables you to spend more time on the water versus under repair. Fun and practical, C-Dory is built to make getting there an enjoyable part of the journey.

With one of the shallowest drafts of any fishing or cruising vessel, a C-Dory can get into places that other boats can't touch.

You can trailer your C-Dory to remote places. A low tow weight helps to reduce fuel consumption out of the water.

OUR BOATS

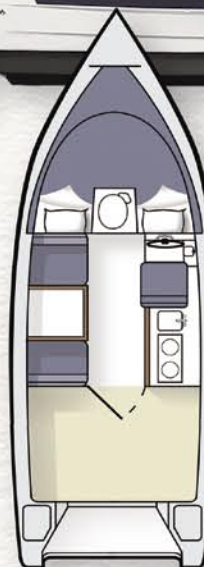

We offer two distinctive types of boats – the C-Dory Angler and the C-Dory Cruiser. The “Angler” as the name implies, features a larger aft cockpit to accommodate sportsmen and their gear. A “Cruiser” version offers an expanded cabin suitable for comfortable cruising. Every C-Dory is built at the company’s factory in Auburn, Washington. From the gelcoat and fiberglass beginning to the final assembly and engine rigging, each boat is built by hand and overseen by builders with decades of experience. We are proud of our boats and welcome you to visit us when you are in the neighborhood.

The Venture Series is designed to satisfy the C-Dory customer seeking additional features and comforts.
